When temperatures rise in the summer, shortening the blade aids the grass remain manageable while promoting a stronger root system. Understanding these adjustments can greatly enhance the overall health of your lawn.

An additional important aspect of effective lawn mowing is following the one-third rule. This means you should not cut more than one-third of the grass blade in a single cutting session. Trimming too much can stress the grass, making it more vulnerable to pests and diseases. By consistently mowing at the right height and intervals, you can achieve a lush, green lawn that is the pride of your neighbors in Cape Girardeau.

In conclusion, consider varying your mowing route with each session. Altering the direction in which you mow can prevent soil compaction and promote upright growth.
